

Write code for a container that holds the last N items added to its collection of items.

If $M < N$ items have been added, the size of the collection is M.

If $M > N$ items have been added, the size of the collection is N.

Provide an index operation such that the zeroth index retrieves the most recently added item, the first index retrieves the next most recently added item, etc.